PROJECT TITLE AND SHORT DESCRIPTION

“Arts and activism”. Ricardo Campos has been involved in several projects that deal with the articulation of arts/creativity and activism/political participation, particularly in the case of young people. His most recent coordinated project was “Articizenship - Young people and the arts of citizenship: activism, participatory culture and creative practices”. The aim was to explore how different youth protagonists, individually or collectively, engaged in different social, cultural and political causes, use certain resources and creative grammars as a form of political expression and participation in the public sphere. This is a particularly relevant subject of research in a period of growing extremism, populism, and crisis of political institutions. The analytical and conceptual framework draws on culturalist approaches to civic and political participation, to study civic and political engagement associated with creative processes. We welcome proposals that address these issues or topics that articulate youth studies with art, creativity, visual culture and/or political participation/citizenship.
