Other useful information

How to arrive to Lisbon, The City of Lisbon, NOVA University Lisbon, Useful Contacts

How to Arrive to Lisbon

Lisboa airport is 10 km from the city center. When you arrive you will find 3 possibilities to get to the Rectorate of NOVA University Lisbon:

By AeroBus

[Here you can find information about the route and the ticket prices.

<http://www.yellowbustours.com/en/cities/lisbon/airport-transport/>]

By Metro (subway)

[Here you can find information about the route and the ticket prices.

<http://www.metrolisboa.pt/>]

To reach NOVA, you have to take the red line towards São Sebastião. From there you have to do a 10 minutes walk to NOVA

(more or less). Click here for the Metro map.

By Taxi

Lisbon has a good network of taxis. During the day fares start at 3,40 euros and at 3,90 euros at night. Taxis are easily found anywhere in Lisbon. Nonetheless, please find some contacts to call a taxi at any time of the day:

Teletaxis: +351 218 111 100;

Autocoope: +351 217 932 756

Retális Rádio Táxis: +351 218 119 000

By Uber

Uber was the first ridesharing service in Lisbon, and although it has recent competitors, it remains the most popular. Fares tend to be slightly lower than regular taxis, but note that if you call an Uber at the airport, the car can't stop outside the arrivals terminal and there may be some confusion figuring out your pickup location.

Useful Information - [Metro + Carris]

The City of Lisbon

Lisbon is the capital city of Portugal and lies on the north bank of the Tagus estuary where it broadens to enter the Atlantic Ocean. Lisbon is Portugal's largest city and its cultural, administrative, commercial and industrial hub. The name comes from "Olissipo", which has its origins in the Phoenician words "Allis Ubbo", meaning "enchanted port". Built on seven hills overlooking the Tagus river, Lisbon is a historic capital where 800 years of cultural influences mingle with modern trends and life styles creating spectacular contrasts.

The international press highlights Lisbon as a dynamic and cosmopolitan city, with a warm climate all year round, where visitors can enjoy the colourful streets, the yellow trams that run along the cobblestone floors and explore historic monuments and museums.

Lisbon also has a vibrant night life and a rich musical culture, of which we highlight Fado, urban popular song of Portugal that was recognized by UNESCO as an Intangible Cultural Heritage of Humanity in 2011.

Touristic Attractions

St. George's Castle

Located in the historic Alfama district, this brooding Moorish castle dominates the city from its vantage point atop Lisbon's highest hill.

NOVA University Lisbon

NOVA University Lisbon was founded in 1973 and has currently more than 19500 students, 1591 teachers and researchers, and 679 non-faculty staff. Proud of its youth as one of the most recent public universities within the Lisbon metropolitan area, NOVA spans through three municipalities, shortly, in four.

NOVA integrates 41 research units, 37 of which are funded by the Fundação para a Ciência e a Tecnologia - FCT (Portuguese Foundation for Science and Technology), including 3 associated laboratories (in partnership with other Portuguese research institutions). The excellent quality of research in many areas is also a cornerstone in the international culture of NOVA. Besides intense exchanges in the European space, NOVA also develops cooperation ties with Brazil and Portuguese-speaking countries, Latin-American countries as well as other regions of the world.

The university is also actively involved in cooperation actions promoted by the Portuguese Government, in particular with North-American universities, such as the University of Texas at Austin (UTA), the Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT) and the Carnegie Mellon University (CMU), namely in master's courses and doctoral and research programmes.

The singularity of the Universidade NOVA de Lisboa project lies in its respect for the individuality of each Academic Unit, each having acquired its image and prestige within the freedom, diversity and tolerance that have been the guidelines of NOVA. One further aim of the project is the strengthening of the cohesion between units in order to take the best possible advantage of the synergies that can thus be generated and developed.

This clear option for a unique but diversified identity, working not only as a network of institutions but also of projects, people and resources, characterizes NOVA as a university that is open to the world and willing to take part in the challenges presented by the 21st century.
